

Dr. Spence, a regular Physician, and Member of the first College in Scotland, has arrived in Salisbury, where he resided three years, during which period he can prove, by the most unquestionable reference, his having restored to perfect health upwards of 200 persons, severely afflicted with disease, by a mode of treatment which appears capable of subduing the most complicated Disorder that both sexes are subject to; and from the result of a late Discovery and minute research, respecting the curative property of certain Medicines hitherto unknown in this country, which he received from foreign Medical Societies, and their certain efficacy in removing Disease, engages to cure the most hopeless cases of Nervous Weakness and Debility, whether proceeding from youthful imprudence or constitutional Weakness, Epilepsy, hysterical fits, Head-ache, Giddiness, and the different complaints that females are subject to: Asthma and Consumption, if the Lungs are not materially injured, with Schirrus Tumour, Gout, Rheumatism, and Lameness affecting the hip or any other part, Dropsy, Stomach, Bowel, and Liver complaints, and the most malignant cases of Scrophula and King's Evil, Wens, and all Glandular Swellings affecting any part, Gravel, Stricture and Gleet, however longstanding, with the most confirmed cases of a certain disorder in all its stages, so as to remove every particle of its destructive effects from the constitution. He will inform such as may apply to him, without any charge, the relief they are to expect from his mode of treatment. - Ninety-three of the Doctor's patients have been restored to health during the last 12 months. He may be consulted with every day, at his Dispensary, Bedwin-street; and any letters (post paid) directed to him there, describing disorder, symptoms, and age, will receive an immediate answer.

Salisbury and Winchester Journal, 23 April 1827