

The HALF-MOON TAVERN

Salisbury

Is, at the Request of many Gentlemen, provided with exceeding good Stall Stables, and opened for the Reception of Company travelling the Road. Such who please to make Use of the said House, may depend upon having good Beds, genteel and reasonable Accommodations of every Kind, a constant endeavour to merit a Continuance of their Favours, and the greatest Care taken of their Horses.

The Half-Moon stands in the most pleasing Part of the Market-Place, almost adjoining to the council-House, and tho' but a few Yards from the great Road, is entirely free from the Noise of Carriages, &c.

A genteel public Coffee-Room in the Front of the House, furnished with all the Evening Papers, &c. &c.

* Neat Post-Chaise

Salisbury and Winchester Journal, Monday 29 June 1767