

Pair of 19th Century clogs

Catherine-street, Salisbury

MARY SIMMONDS (Widow of the late Thomas Simmonds, Boot and Shoe-maker), in returning her best thanks to her numerous Friends for past favours, begs to inform them and the Public at large, that the Business conducted by her late Husband, and since his decease, by her late Son, will still be carried on by her in every department, as usual, with the assistance of able and proficient workmen; and she respectfully solicits a continuance of those favors which for upwards of 20 years have been so liberally bestowed, and which it will be her study to deserve by strict attention to all orders entrusted to her, and by moderate charges.

Pattens and Clogs of every description.

Salisbury and Winchester Journal, 23 April 1827