During both wars, Gosport was a significant sea port and Naval depot, with many government factories and installations based there, as well as the Haslar Naval Hospital. No 5 Squadron Royal Flying Corps were based at Gosport just before the outbreak of the First World War and during the Second World War the town acted as base to No 17 Group Royal Air Force and the Royal Navy Light Coastal Forces.

Haslar Royal Naval Cemetery, which was attached to the Naval Hospital of 2,000 beds, contains 772 First World War graves, 2 of which are unidentified. Most are scattered throughout the cemetery.

The Second World War graves number 611, 36 of them unidentified. A number of the graves are scattered throughout the cemetery, but the majority lie together in one or other or five groups, the largest of which contains more than 350 burials, the smallest 25.

There are also 10 Foreign National war burials and 9 non world war service burials here. (Information & photos from CWGC)

Haslar Royal Naval Cemetery has many graves which are marked by 'Admiralty Crosses' as they are known. These are headstones provided by the Admiralty after the war. The Admiralty was the authority responsible for the command of the Royal Navy until 1964.
