

Church News

Dinton

Ashe Plaque

DINTON

To the Editor of the Salisbury and Winchester Journal.

DEAR SIR,- On a slab in Dinton churchyard, situated in the angle formed by the chancel and north transept is the following inscription. There is no tradition relating to it. Can any of your readers throw any light on the subject? It alludes to some tragical event by which the poor boy met his death:-

Here lyeth the body of

JAMES ASHE, Esq.,

Who departed this life ye 28th of April, 1728

Aged 61 years.

Epitaph on brass-

Here lyes dear to his Parents love and joy
That most pretty and ingenious boy
His matchless soul is not yet forgotten
Though here the lovely body dead and rotten
Ages to come to may wonder at his fame
And here his death by shameful malice came
How spightful some did use him and how rude
Grife will not let me write but now conclude
To God for ever all praise be given
Since we hope he is with him in heaven.
I.A. 23. December, 1716

There is no entry of the burial in the Register. Ashe does not seem to have been a Dinton family.

Your obedient servant,

NO ANTIQUARIAN

(Salisbury & Winchester Journal, 13th March, 1858)

Correction

......And the first line of the epitaph should have been -

©Wiltshire OPC Project/Cathy Sedgwick/2013

Epitaph

Here Iyes Dear Jo: his Parents Love and Joy
That most pretty and Ingenious Boy
His matchless Soul is not yet forgotten
Tho here the lovely Body dead and Rotten
Ages to come to may wonder at his fame
And here his Death by shameful malice came
How spightfull Some did use him and how Rude
Grife will not let me write but now Conclude
To God for Ever all praise be Given
Since wee hope he is with him in Heaven.

I.A. ob 23. Decembr, 1716