

ACCIDENTS Swallowcliffe 1850-1899

1867

On Friday, a lad named James Fay, was riding on a load of grass belonging to Mr. Miles, and owing to the horses suddenly quickening their pace, he fell to the ground, striking his head against a stone. He was taken up in a state of insensibility, and, being much bruised, he was removed to the Salisbury Infirmary. Western Gazette, Friday, 20 September 1867
